SUSPENSION OF CONSTITUTION IS "FUNDAMENTALLY UNDEMOCRATIC": PREMIER SAYS

Since May, following the presentation of the Commission of Inquiry (COI) report the government of National Unity has been in a delicate dance to implement the reforms outlined by the United Kingdom government in order to prevent the suspension of the Territory's Constitution.

When the COI report was presented by His Excellency on 29 April residents of the Territory went into an uproar at the scathing findings and recommendations which included the dissolution of the House of Assembly and the partial suspension of the Territory's Constitution

One of the response measures was the forming of the Government of National Unity which featured members of the Opposition. Since that time the Premier

Dr. the Hon. Natalio Wheatley has refrained from giving his personal opinion on the looming partial Constitutional suspension. However, he was very frank and candid about his position on the matter during the 6 October press conference.

The Premier told reporters: "Let me just speak about the whole concept of suspending someone's constitution. I don't agree with it. In any way, shape or form. I do not agree with the United Kingdom or any other government suspending another group's constitution. It is fundamentally undemocratic."

As Hon. Wheatley responded to a question from the media the BVI Leader doubled down on his disagreement with the suggested partial suspension of the Territory's Constitution if certain reforms aren't completed. He said: "The whole concept of suspending a constitution is a flawed concept that the United Kingdom, in my view, should abandon."

Although it was announced that the government is making progress on delivering on the recommendations made in the COI report, Hon. Wheatley noted that the partial suspension of the Territory's

Constitution is still on the table, and he urged residents to keep this in mind.

The Premier said: “I think everybody should be worried about the concept of our Constitution being suspended because of course it is a reality... There was a recommendation from Sir Gary Hickinbottom that our constitution be suspended... The concept has not been completely abandoned. Everybody should be concerned about it. But what we cannot do, we cannot be implementing reforms based on coercion or force. That’s something I reject completely.”

He also pointed out that: “The United Kingdom has the authority under the laws and our constitution and the laws of the United Kingdom to suspend our constitution. They have the power to do that. Whether we have a draft Order in Council or not, they have the power to do it. And I believe that we have to move away from a relationship where any government or any group of people can put another group of people in that position.”

Further Hon. Wheatley declared that whether or not the United Kingdom moves ahead with the partial Constitutional suspension still leaves the voice and choice of the people intact. He explained: “You can’t impose democracy on someone. Even if you suspend the Constitution, the people still have to live here and we still have to deal with our own affairs. When you suspend the Constitution, at some point you have to implement a constitution and you still have to deal with the people. The people will have a right at some point, just like in the Turks and Caicos, to elect a government and this government will have the power to make laws and amend laws... The government will have to do so in collaboration with the people who have elected them, and the people they represent”

While further calling on the power of the people the Premier stated: “We are going through a constitutional review process and I think it’s a wonderful time for us to get together and send a very clear message that we do not want to have a relationship with those type of colonial practices, where you take away our House of Assembly and you take away Cabinet and you put all the power, all executive and legislature ... in one man’s hands who’s not elected. For me that’s unacceptable,” Dr Wheatley said.

REGISTER OF INTERESTS ACT SEEMS TO TOUCH A SENSITIVE CHORD ON ACCESS

In a statement issued on 5 October Premier Natalio Wheatley sought to provide clarity on some of the concerning announcements that were made by His Excellency Governor John Rankin during his quarterly progress report on the Framework for Implementation of the COI Report recommendations and other reforms.

During his 4 October statement the Governor in his list of areas of concern where he said there has been less progress than expected, and where he said he has been disappointed with the level of commitment to reform, mention of the Constitutional Review Commission, the Register of Interests Act and tender waivers were made.

As it relates to the Constitutional Review Commission the Governor stated: “The resistance encountered to some of the nominations for the Constitutional Review Commission, which ran contrary to the importance of the Commission being representative of the BVI as a whole.” The Governor was referencing the fact that persons in the community raised alarm about the fact that two members of the Commission were not born in the Territory.

In addressing this listed “disappointment” by the Governor, Hon. Wheatley sought to explain the stance the government took on that matter. The Premier said: “In regard to the establishment of the Constitutional Review Commission, I am unsure why this matter has caused concern. My Ministerial colleagues and I had a duty to express the concerns of our constituents about the makeup of the membership.”

“The concerns were serious enough that they should have been brought to the attention of the Governor. This is the constitution that will govern the lives of Virgin Islanders, and they must have a voice in the process. Despite the voicing of the people’s concerns, which has been described, unfortunately, as resistance, the Commission was approved in Cabinet and the House of Assembly. They have begun their work, and I am looking forward to their report once completed,” the Premier stated.

In relation to the Register of Interest Act the Governor said that he was disappointed by the amendments that were done. He explained: “These include amendments to the Register of Interests Bill which restrict access to the Register and would only make it publicly available in the most limited way.”

However, Hon. Wheatley explained that amendments to the Act were the best approach at the time. He pointed out that, “The full transparency of elected officials’ interests is a cornerstone of the reforms my colleagues and I have undertaken through an amendment to the Register of Interests Act. The Governor’s progress report highlights a concern about the restriction of public access to this information.”

“Presently, any person can view a representative’s interests. However, they cannot make a copy of it, which is where I understand the concern lies. This provision is reflected in the Register of Interests Act in Cayman Islands. As the central political institutional in our democracy, the House of Assembly has powers to determine such things, but the public must tell us whether or not we have gone far enough. We are open to hearing what the public has to say and can organise a special public consultation to get a gauge on public opinion,” Hon. Wheatley noted.

The Premier further explained that “the greatest concern on the Register of Interests is not the fact that the House of Assembly made a minor amendment but the undemocratic way in which the legislation, which falls under the Governor’s group, was being imposed on Public Officers without proper consultation. I will continue to stand up for the rights of the people in these Virgin Islands to participate and have a voice in reform.”

The Governor’s concerns about tender waiver was most noted in his quarterly report and in Premier’s response to that concern Hon. Wheatley noted that the term tender waivers does not appear in local laws.

The BVI Leader pointed out: “The Public Finance Management Act mandates that all contracts US$100,000 and above be tendered unless cabinet directs otherwise. Therefore, cabinet had unlimited discretion in choosing not to tender, which we recognized had to change. Way before the COI, we were in the process of developing a stand-alone procurement Act to modernize our legislative framework on procurement.”

Hon. Wheatley further mentioned that the Territory now has in place the Public Procurement Act which gives clear guidelines on how procurement is to be done. This, he said, has removed the open discretion which previously existed. “Procurement can be done through open tendering, restricted tendering or single source procurement for the most part. The circumstances in which each can be done is clearly defined in the law and is supposed to improve competitive bidding, value for money and transparency,” the Premier stated.

OFFICER OF PREMIER OFFICE ARRESTED AND CHARGED

The Royal Virgin Islands Police Force confirmed on Tuesday 11 October that Najan Christopher who served as Assistant Secretary of External Affairs at the Office of the Premier was arrested and charged on Monday in relation to the letter she allegedly sent in May in aid of embattled former Premier Andrew Fahie.

Former Premier Fahie was arrested in Miami in April and remains in custody facing charges relating to drugs and money laundering. It was disclosed that following the news of Fahie's arrest a letter was sent from the Premier's Office asserting that Fahie was entitled to diplomatic privileges. The letter was investigated and in the announcement of the matter Premier Dr. the Hon. Natalio Wheatley described the author of the missive as a "rogue officer." This person was later identified as Christopher.

She was placed on administrative leave at the time pending investigations of the matter, and it was explained this week that those investigations led to charges. In its disclosure on the matter the RVIPF stated: "Police can confirm that Najan Christopher was arrested and charged yesterday for breach of trust by a public officer and false assumption of authority. She was granted bail in the sum of $5,000 to appear before Magistrate's Court on 30 November. Her charges stem from the diplomatic note sent from the Premier's office."

Back in May when the letter allegedly written by Christopher became public it was disclosed that the document was sent to the US Court dealing with Fahie's matter urging that he be released forthwith.

Following the disclosure, Premier Wheatley was questioned about the situation during a press conference at the time and he responded by saying: "The Deputy Governor would be the best person to give an update on that but as I have been told, that officer has been on leave from the Premier's Office while the investigation ensues."

Prior to that statement to the press, the Premier had made a public announcement of the actions of the "rogue officer" during a special territorial broadcast on 4 May. The public announcement from the Premier was prompted by the circulation of a copy of the letter that was sent by the alleged "rogue officer". In his announcement Hon. Wheatley emphasized that he nor the Permanent Secretary in the Premier's Office sanctioned that letter.

The letter which was dated 3 May bore the stamp of the Premier's Office and in response Hon. Wheatley said: "It appears that the preparation and sending out of the correspondence were the actions of a rogue Public Officer who acted without the authorization or the knowledge of myself as Acting Premier or of the Permanent Secretary. The content of this letter regarding diplomatic immunity for Hon. Fahie does not reflect the position of the Premier's Office or the Government of the Virgin Islands."

"IT IS TIME TO BE BVI" MYRON WALWYN SAYS

While refraining from providing a definitive answer as to whether or not he will be contesting the next general elections former Minister of Education Myron Walwyn bemoaned the state of the current political climate and poor conduct during the last election season.

During an interview on ZBVI's Talking Points radio programme Walwyn noted that the tone from the election campaign carried into the COI which was called later. According to Hon. Walwyn the reference to political individuals as corrupt created a narrative that was heard throughout the COI process.

While expanding on this point the former legislator said: "If you noticed throughout the COI, some of the questions that were coming came from things they'd picked up in the news that people could not properly defend at the time, because they knew they were only vacillating politically."

Mr. Walwyn explained that the comments about corruption that were rampant on the news blogs may have also affected the reputation of the Territory abroad, in addition to casting a cloud that loomed in the various COI hearings.

As the Territory prepares to head into another political season Walwyn is pleading for a change and a better approach to campaigning. He said: "The level of politics has to improve in the BVI... to me, the population is too sophisticated, too educated to have some of the nonsense that we have [been] coming out in elections. It's almost like who tells the most lies would win."

"It's time to raise the level of politics in the country. We have a sophisticated population; open things up to people," he added.

The former legislator also complained that the partisan nature of BVI politics was harming the Territory. While calling for a more frank approach to campaigning and politics he said that bad behaviours seem to be rewarded in the political space. He called for a rebuke of actions that are unsavory regardless of who the perpetrator is, "Bad is bad regardless of who does it," Walwyn declared.

While noting that the political and partisan space is not as extreme as it is in other places, Walwyn still cautioned against the Territory heading in that direction. He said: "We don't have that philosophical identification like what you have with the republicans and democrats, but we're getting there."

He said that persons could have party loyalty, but must also be willing to let their party know if it is doing wrong. "At some point, it will deepen and will widen, but you can still support a party and still call them out when they are wrong and that is something that I need to see us do a little more."

"It is time that we stop being NDP and VIP and be BVI," Walwyn added.

STATEMENT BY PREMIER AND MINISTER OF FINANCE DR. the HONOURABLE NATALIO D. WHEATLEY ON THE QUARTERLY PROGRESS REPORT ON THE FRAMEWORK FOR IMPLEMENTATION OF THE COI REPORT RECOMMENDATIONS AND OTHER REFORMS

5TH OCTOBER 2022

Fellow Virgin Islanders,
More than five months ago the Government of National Unity made a commitment to reform in order to strengthen the Territory's institutions and systems of government and to transform the way the Government's business is handled, beginning with us. Toward this end, we agreed a framework for the implementation of the Commission of Inquiry Report Recommendations and other reforms in June. The primary actors responsible for implementation, included me as Premier, other Cabinet Ministers, the House of Assembly, Ministries of Government and the Governor. We have all been working tirelessly over the past three months to deliver for the people of the Virgin Islands.

We have made substantial progress, but there is much more work to do to get the job done. By the end of August, 94% of the recommendations were completed or were in progress to be completed. We have worked hard, and I would like to thank all the hard-working public servants, reviewers, Ministers, and legislators for all their hard work thus far. I can say with confidence that everyone involved is truly committed to reform.

We were very ambitious in our commitments and, unfortunately, deadlines have been missed. It is important to note that deadlines have been missed on the Governor's side as well as on the side of cabinet. In all instances, these deadlines have been missed for good reason. For instance, we have insisted that the Jury Act and the Register of Interests Act, both which fall under the Governor's groups' responsibilities, receive proper consultation as opposed to being rushed through the legislative process. We understand this not to be a box ticking exercise but a real effort for real and sustained change, and this is not something that should be rushed. It is important to acknowledge, however, we are heading in the right direction.

As you know, the framework of reforms that we are implementing includes a quarterly progress report by His Excellency the Governor Mr. John J. Rankin, CMG. Governor Rankin published his report earlier this week on the progress of reform. The report acknowledged the progress that has been made but highlighted some areas of concern. I thank the Governor for his recognition of the reforms that have been implemented.

It is important to acknowledge that we have a partnership with the United Kingdom. It has been described as a modern partnership. We value the relationship we have with the United Kingdom, and we believe that having a good relationship is in the best interest of the people of the Virgin Islands. For this partnership to be successful, it must be based on mutual respect, understanding, and a shared commitment to democratic principles. In any partnership or friendship, there will be disagreements and misunderstandings. It is important that we deal with them maturely and in such a way that strengthens the partnership rather than eroding it.

In terms of the concerns he highlighted, my Ministerial colleagues and I have had an opportunity to engage the Governor to properly understand the source of his concerns. After a thorough discussion, I believe there is a genuine misunderstanding on the particular issues, which we, unfortunately, did not have an opportunity to discuss and clarify before publication.

In terms of tender waivers, it is important to understand that this term does not appear in our local laws. The Public Finance Management Act mandates that all contracts 100,000 and above be tendered unless cabinet directs otherwise. Therefore, cabinet had unlimited discretion in choosing not to tender, which we recognized had to change. Way before the COI, we were in the process of developing a stand alone procurement act to modernize our legislative framework on procurement.

We now have in place the Public Procurement Act which gives clear guidelines on how procurement is to be done, and this has removed the open discretion which previously existed. Procurement can be done through open tendering, restricted tendering or single source procurement for the most part. The circumstances in which each can be done is clearly defined in the law and is supposed to improve competitive bidding, value for money and transparency. Single source procurement is not the equivalent of a tender waiver; it clearly defines the instances where it is not necessary to go through an open tender. For example, contracts for emergencies or a national security matters do not have to go through open tendering.

Currently, we are in a transitional phase where the Ministries are transitioning away from previously signed rolling contracts for various services and ensuring that we are fully engaged in open tendering for these goods and services. These contractual arrangements were made before the new legislation was passed. The Ministry of Finance is providing the required training to Accounting Officers and Financial Planning Officers across government to expedite this process. In the meantime,

'Hacker' to deliver keynote at C&W's cybersecurity forum

-featuring Hector Monsegur - one of the most controversial hackers of this generation

Miami, FLORIDA (September 30th, 2022) -- Public and private sector players are being encouraged to better safeguard their networks and systems against increasing threats from international cybercriminals.

C&W Business, the business-to-business arm of C&W Communications, will host two online forums this month aimed at helping governments, large businesses and individual entrepreneurs better protect their organisations and companies from online threats.

The webinars will feature controversial hacker-turned-computer security specialist Hector Monsegur – the man behind the Anonymous/LulzSec hacker collectives, as well as informant for the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI).

“Cybersecurity involves preventing, detecting, and responding to cyberattacks that can have wide-ranging effects on individuals, organisations, local communities, and entire countries. As the Caribbean's leading service provider, we see it as our responsibility to inform, advise and educate about the varied elements of online security,” said Nicolas Collette, Vice President, B2B, C&W Communications.

“Hector once ruled the 'hactivist' scene breaching security systems of major corporations and governments around the globe, and he will share the mindset of a hacker and how organizations can proactively protect themselves. He will also present the inside secrets of how hackers choose their targets, why hacking appeals to people, how hacking tools work, and how you can protect yourself and loved ones from vulnerability.”

Monsegur, also known by the online pseudonym Sabu, became an informant for the FBI after facing a sentence of 124 years in prison for his role in the LulzSec hacker collective intervening in the affairs of organisations such as News Corporation, Stratfor, UK and American law enforcement bodies and the Irish political party, Fine Gael.

Monsegur now works as an ethical hacker conducting penetration tests – authorized simulated cyberattacks on computer systems performed to evaluate the security of the system.

“Global cyber-attacks increased by 32% in 2022 when compared to 2021, with an all-time high being recorded in the second quarter of this year. The Caribbean and Latin America has also seen the largest increase in attacks, with research suggesting one out of twenty-three organisations impacted weekly – a 43% increase when compared to 2021,” added Collette.

“The cybercriminals are not slowing down and we must be proactive in our approach to safeguarding our networks to withstand any eventuality. With the right technologies in place, most attacks, even the most advanced ones, can be prevented and we are happy to be providing this timely forum for the exchange of knowledge and best practices in reducing and preventing cybercrime in our region.”

VACANCY NOTICE

CHAIRPERSON, LABOUR ARBITRATION TRIBUNAL

The Government of the Virgin Islands, Ministry of Natural Resources and Labour, is seeking to fill the role of Chairman of the Labour Arbitration Tribunal. The Labour Arbitration Tribunal's role is to resolve labour disputes with integrity and accountability. This includes complaints on unfair dismissal, constructive dismissal, redundancy and discrimination in the workplace.

ABOUT THE TRIBUNAL

The Tribunal is an independent tribunal set up under the Labour Code, 2010. It has power to make orders and awards with the same force as an order or award of the High Court. Persons/parties appearing before the Tribunal are entitled to the same rights or privileges as they would have before any court.

Tribunal hearings are heard before the Chairperson sitting alone and the trials are heard before three members who, together, are referred to as the full panel. The full panel consists of the Chairman and two (2) accredited Labour Arbitrators.

MAIN RESPONSIBILITIES

- Conduct hearings and trials
- Draft orders and awards
- Render decisions
- Issue Witness Summons
- Perform such other related functions as necessary

THE IDEAL CANDIDATES SHOULD EMBODY THE FOLLOWING QUALITIES:

- Be an attorney-at-law of at least ten (10) years' good standing
- Manage time commitments to meet the Tribunal's objectives
- Be trustworthy and confidential
- Be able to make legally-sound, fair and equitable decisions
- Possess personal qualities of high integrity and credibility

TERMS OF SERVICE

The Chairperson shall serve for a period of two (2) years.

QUARTERLY PROGRESS REPORT ON THE FRAMEWORK

however, we cannot simply stop procuring the goods and services needed, such as transporting our students or security services for detainees. A transition period is necessary to integrate previously signed rolling contracts into the new system now in place under the Procurement Act.

Where it concerns immigration reform, the work to bolster the processes and systems in the Immigration Department has continued in order to expand the department's capacity to meet the increased demands upon its services. This will enable internal processes to move much more swiftly.

In regard to the establishment of the Constitutional Review Commission, I am unsure why this matter has caused concern. My Ministerial colleagues and I had a duty to express the concerns of our constituents about the makeup of the membership. The concerns were serious enough that they should have been brought to the attention of the Governor. This is the constitution that will govern the lives of Virgin Islanders, and they must have a voice in the process. Despite the voicing of the people's concerns, which has been described, unfortunately, as resistance, the Commission was approved in Cabinet and the House of Assembly. They have begun their work, and I am looking forward to their report once completed.

Finally, the fully transparency of elected officials' interests is a cornerstone of the reforms my colleagues and I have undertaken through an amendment to Register of Interests Act. The Governor's progress report highlights a concern about the restriction of public access to this information. Presently, any person can view a representative's interests. However, they cannot make a copy of it, which is where I understand the concern lies. This provision is reflected in the Register of Interests Act in Cayman Islands. As the central political institution in our democracy, the House of Assembly has powers to determine such things, but the public must tell us whether or not we have gone far enough. We are open to hearing what the public has to say and can organise a special public consultation to get a gauge on public opinion.

The greatest concern on the Register of Interests is not the fact that the House of Assembly made a minor amendment but the undemocratic way in which the legislation, which falls under the Governor's group, was being imposed on Public Officers without proper consultation. I will continue to stand up for the rights of the people in these Virgin Islands to participate and have a voice in reform.

I was also surprised to read in the Governor's report a criticism on late cabinet papers. All Cabinet Papers that come to Cabinet are jointly agreed by the Governor and me. As stipulated in the Cabinet handbook, these papers are due 48 hours in advance. This deadline has been consistently met. If we consider a paper with less notice than this, it is only with the agreement of the Governor and Premier. As Premier, I will continue to engage the Governor at Cabinet Steering Group to keep the Cabinet agenda and reform process moving forward.

The Governor and I both respect the Cabinet process and I know that he appreciates that it has improved and that Cabinet Members have been working within the rules of the institution, as well as meeting our commitments under the framework for reform.

The key in this reform process is engagement. Naturally there will be differences in perspective, but these will not block reform. We all are committed to doing what is in the best interest of the people of the Virgin Islands. We just have to work out what is the best mechanism or process for achieving the desired objectives as we implement the reforms in the framework. That is why democratic governance is important. It is not always timely, but it is the best way to make meaningful change that respects the dignity of the people of this Territory.

Reform has its challenges, but the Government of National Unity will stay the course and deliver for the people of these Virgin Islands. We ask for your continued support as we do this together. We must remember you cannot impose democracy on a people. The very concept is a paradox. People must be a central part of any democratic process, and I will not waiver in my commitment to defend democracy.

I will update you again in due course.

God bless you all and God bless these beautiful Virgin Islands.

Senior Client Advisor

Your challenge

We are planning to hire a Senior Client Advisor. He/she is responsible for the bank's investment and business transaction functions and cooperates closely with the head of the Client Business team and other team members in ensuring the efficiency of the bank's operations with an emphasis on business development and management of high value asset relationships.

He/she liaises with clients either personally or via phone, letter or e-mail and assists them in all their banking needs. In addition, the Senior Client Advisor is involved with the preparation of detailed investment proposals for clients and prospects as well as payments verifications, securities and derivatives trading and e-banking matters. He/she liaises with our head office/other VP Bank Group subsidiaries as needed. In line with the whole banking team, he/she is responsible that the bank's client records are in good order and ensures that office procedures and group / external regulations as well as internal and external AML requirements are followed.

The successful candidate must be familiar with the investment advisory process in line with MiFID and other regulatory standards. You will have a strong understanding of company financial analysis as well as market and macro-economic data and news. Knowledge of credit matters, particularly Lombard loans, is expected. Additionally, you will have broad experience with the different structures and investment vehicles used in the BVI. Experience in the trust and corporate services industry would be highly beneficial.

The position requires strong interpersonal skills. You are a driven and solution-oriented person with team-player qualities and a hands-on enterprising attitude, confirmed by appropriate CV and references. You will have demonstrated a high degree of commitment and a proven track record in delivering high-quality and timely service. Success or failure in the role is determined to a large degree by internal and external customer satisfaction, as well as the degree to which the candidate is perceived as a team player by his/her colleagues.

Your profile

You are currently a banking professional with a strong investment background. You are a driven and solution-oriented individual, an ideas person firmly committed to business development (which will require travel). You have excellent written and interpersonal communication skills as well as excellent organisation, leadership, negotiation and presentation skills. You have a minimum of 10 years' professional experience in an international banking context, managing a global client base. You will also have trading experience in global securities and derivatives, including equities, bonds, foreign exchange, precious metals, futures and options across main global markets, with an appropriate trading and/or relevant professional qualification (at least at BSc. Level).

Bush Cutting Policy Under Revision

Permanent Secretary in the Ministry of Communications and Works, Mr. Ronald Smith-Berkeley stated that the Ministry has experienced some administrative delays in attending to bush cutting throughout the Territory.

He explained that the delays are due changes that had to be made to the way that contracts for bush cutting are awarded as a result of the implementation of recommendations of the Commission of Inquiry Report.

"There were many processes that had to be revised in our daily operations. This was one of those things that came under the umbrella of revision for contracts," Permanent Secretary Smith-Berkeley said.

While the comprehensive review of the bush cutting policy and administrative issues are underway, the Ministry and its agencies are implementing measures to address the situation.

The Department of Public Works and the Department of Waste Management will be giving additional attention in the maintenance of the Territory's main road network.

"The Public Works Department will continue to do its part to ensure safety on the roadways, and the clearing of obstructions on the roadways include, bushes, rocks, tree limbs and the like," said the Director of Public Works, Mr. Jeremy Hodge.

Mr. Neville Allen, Acting Manager at the Department of Waste Management said that the team at the Department of Waste Management is also using their current collection zone schedule to guide in the increased effort to ensure a clean BVI.

The Government of the Virgin Islands is asking that motorists continue to drive with diligence as the collaborative effort by its agencies take action in providing safety on the Territory's roadways.

GLOBAL NEWS BRIEF

STORIES SELECTED BY GIORGIO MIGLIAVACCA

RUSSIA - German Defense Minister Lambrecht visited Lithuania and said NATO must "do more" in the face of Putin's "delusions of grandeur." She inaugurated a command center that will allow for the transfer of up to 5,000 troops.

The NATO military alliance must "do more" to protect itself from Russia, German Defense Minister Christine Lambrecht said on Saturday.

Lambrecht made the comments during a visit to Lithuania, where she met with German troops deployed there as part of a NATO mission as well as with her Lithuanian counterpart Arvydas Anusauskas.

What did Lambrecht say?

"One thing is certain: the current situation means we need to do more together," Lambrecht said.

Lambrecht stressed that no one can "know how far Putin's delusions of grandeur can go."

"The brutal Russian war of aggression in Ukraine is getting more and more brutal and unscrupulous. ... Russia's threat of nuclear weapons shows that Russian authorities have no scruples," she said.

President Vladimir Putin and other Russian officials have on multiple occasions alluded to Moscow's nuclear capabilities when addressing the West on its role in supporting Ukraine. The United States has said that it sees no indication that Russia is preparing to use nuclear weapons.

Germany's defense minister also reiterated Berlin's commitment to strengthening NATO's eastern flank.

"We've heard Russia's threats to Lithuania, which was implementing European sanctions on the border with Kaliningrad. There are not the first threats, and we must take them seriously and be prepared," she said. "We stand by our allies."

ALZHEIMER'S - More and more patients have been asking neurologist Juan Fortea for "that new drug for Alzheimer's disease." Dr. Fortea works at Sant Pau Hospital in Barcelona (Spain), one of the 12 Spanish sites for a broad, international clinical trial of the experimental drug, lecanemab. The preliminary results of the trial indicate a 27% reduction in cognitive decline in people with early-stage Alzheimer's, according to Eisai and Biogen, the two companies that developed the drug. Even though they have not made the clinical trial data available for independent review, Eisai and Biogen shares soared on the stock market after the announcement, despite the lack of conclusive evidence that lecanemab has any benefit for Alzheimer's patients.

Fortea doesn't hide his feeling of helplessness in treating Alzheimer's. This is the first molecule in 20 years that appears to have some effect, however slight, against the progression of this disease. But the lack of data and a lengthy drug approval process – at least two years – means that we will have to wait and see if lecanemab is the breakthrough drug the world has been waiting for. "I couldn't be more excited, but I have to urge caution," said Fortea, who is collaborating with Eisai and Biogen and is also a spokesperson for the Spanish Society of Neurology.

Alzheimer's is often described as a family disease because it also affects the loved ones and caregivers of heavily dependent patients. The search for a cure has so far been unproductive. The only approved treatments for Alzheimer's can only mitigate some symptoms, and don't stem the progression of a disease that affects 50 million people worldwide, a number that is projected to increase in the future.

The lecanemab clinical trial included 1,795 patients from 14 countries. All had mild Alzheimer's symptoms and beta-amyloid protein accumulation in the brain, a pathological mechanism of the disease. Patients with early-stage Alzheimer's start having short-term memory loss, but can still live independent, normal lives. According to the drug developers, the lecanemab clinical trial showed that after 18 months, the cognitive impairment of people taking the drug was 0.45 points lower on a scale of zero to 18 than those taking a placebo. But the question remains whether this translates into a real clinical benefit – can someone with Alzheimer's live independently and avoid going into a nursing home? Does the 27% reduction in cognitive decline mean dementia can be staved off for days, months or years? The data released by Eisai and Biogen doesn't provide answers to these and many other questions. BERMUDA - Parliamentarians approved the final extension of Covid-19 public health emergency measures.

Public Health (Covid-19) Emergency Extension (No 1) Order 2022, which extends the measures until November 30, was passed in the House last night with no objections.

Kim Wilson, the Minister of Health, reminded the house that since March 2020, Bermuda recorded 18,220 cases and 148 deaths.

She said: "It is this Government's intension to bring an end to the public health emergency in Bermuda. The order ... before the House today, will extend the current order for 37 days from October 25 to November 30, 2022.

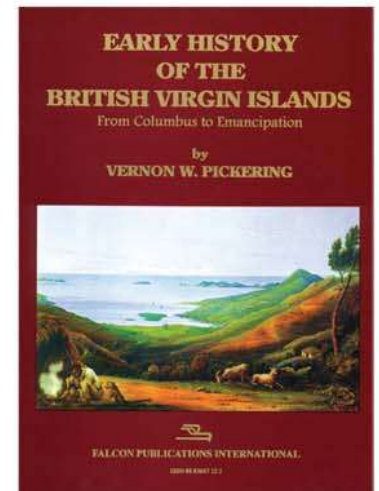

"The coronavirus continues to be a threat to our health and wellbeing but not at the same levels as it was this time last year. Some may ask why not end the public health emergency right now? The consensus among most public health experts is that this upcoming autumn and winter season is important.

"Around the world there is a relaxation of public health measures ... with the colder months approaching a new, more infectious or deadlier variant can cause havoc. For this reason, the Government has decided upon a phased road map out of the public health emergency in the coming weeks rather than ending all remaining public health and safety measures at once. This phased approach will allow the continued assessment of the prevalence of infection in the community and most importantly its impact on our health system."

Ms Wilson said that business operators may continue to impose mask-wearing policies which must be legally adhered to by staff and customers. She said that Covid-19 continues to pose a serious threat to Bermuda. [Royal Gazette]

The data also shows that the island welcomed over 5 million visitors over the same period. According to arrivals figures, the announcement follows the destination's strong tourism recovery efforts that resulted in its best summer ever.

The island recorded over 224,000 stopover arrivals for the summer period in June, while 2019 June figures show 222,000 arrivals.

"These phenomenal earnings and arrivals figures are truly a testament to the hard work of my Ministry, its public bodies and our many stakeholders and partners. Through our thought leadership, Jamaica was able to reopen its borders at the height of the pandemic and remain open to allow visitors to travel to the island safely and seamlessly.

This strong recovery is happening even amidst the disruptions that the pandemic is causing in the airline industry with flight cancellations and supply chain disruptions," said Minister of Tourism, Hon Edmund Bartlett. [Caribbean News Now]

Dear Readers: Reading is Fundamental – 5 Reasons Why (part 1 of 2)

Most people have incredibly fond memories of books from their childhood. Maybe there was one book in particular that you read over and over. Or maybe it was the experience of going to the library and having shelf after shelf of books ready for you. Or perhaps it was spending time with a special loved one, reading together. One way or another, reading touches most of us on an emotional level.

But there are some very practical reasons to read to and with your children, starting from a very young age. Some of these include:

School Success – Research shows that children who are exposed to reading early, before preschool, have a greater likelihood of achieving success in all areas of education down the road.

Speech Skills – By reading to a child from infancy, you are helping that child to develop their language and enunciation skills. They hear the sounds and “replicate” with their own version, thereby encouraging them to start sounding out words on their own. You are also helping to expand their vocabulary in age-appropriate ways. Additionally, this will help children to learn ways to express themselves and their feelings/emotions.

Reading Structure – Reading at an early age helps children to become familiar with how stories work and to develop a sense of logic as to what type of thing may happen next in a story. It also helps to establish an understanding of cause and effect, without having to experience the events first hand.

Dear Ladyburd: My husband and I are together for a few years now and during the second year of the marriage I found out that he fathered a child. He did not bother to let me know about it, his excuse was that he did not want to hurt me, so he kept quiet, I accidentally found out and I was upset, I told him to get out of my life I never want to see him again, anyhow, he apologized to me and told me that he loves me and it was a one night affair, and I forgave him. My main problem is that I cannot bring myself to love the child, every time I see the child, I remember that he cheated on me and I get enraged. What can I do? Enraged Wife

Ladyburd: Dear Enraged Wife: The first thing you must remember is that the child is not at fault, and you cannot blame him for coming into the world, try to address your feelings with your husband as well as going and getting some counseling.

You might also be feeling that way because you have not really forgiven him for cheating on you, you have not put it behind you, so you will have to let it go and move on, and to do that, you will have to forgive him, not in words, but in deeds. The question to ask, is he being faithful to you now or is he still cheating on you?.. These are some questions you will have to ask your husband in a serious discussion

The Rain

*There's a simple beauty to the falling rain.
The same kind of beauty you find in a child's smile or a flower covered hillside terrain.*

The sound of the rain falling on the roof above gives me a feeling of peacefulness, like the song of a cooing dove.

The rain, a gift from above to sanctify, as it plays me a peaceful lullaby.

Though it may be dark, inside I feel a warming light, as the gentle patter of the rain helps me sleep throughout the night.

The rain is a gift from God above washing Mother Nature's flowers.

Yes, there is a simple beauty to the rain as I stand and watch as it showers.

Simple Tricks Make Acorn Squash a Treat

It's autumn, and acorn squash are in season, delicious, versatile, frugal and fabulous!

Some people find preparing squash daunting. I get it -- the rind is hard to cut through and there are all those gooey seeds!

I felt the same way until I learned a few tricks. First, for hard-skinned squash, if you pierce them a few times and microwave for two to three minutes, they're much easier to cut in half.

Second, everything is easier to cut with a sharp knife. If you can upgrade only one thing in your kitchen, invest in a quality chef's knife.

Third, to easily remove the seeds, use an ice cream scoop. The sharp edge cuts through the stringy stuff, making removal a breeze. Armed with these tricks, preparing squash becomes a treat.

Sweet or savory? Acorn squash can be prepared either way, and both are wonderful. For a sweet squash, rub the exposed surface of the squash with butter and sprinkle with a little salt. Place a 1/2 tablespoon each butter and brown sugar (or more, I won't tell) in the center and roast, uncovered. You also could add maple syrup, cinnamon or pumpkin pie spice.

For savory squash, brush with olive oil, sprinkle with salt and pepper and roast. Optionally, you can place a little fresh herb (sage, rosemary or oregano) in the center with a pat of butter or splash of oil and roast uncovered.

ROAST ACORN SQUASH

Total Time: 50 minutes

Yield: 1 squash or 2 servings

- 1 acorn squash
- tablespoon olive oil or butter, divided
- Salt and pepper

Arrange oven rack in the lower-middle position of the oven. Preheat to 400 F. Wash your squash. Working from the tip toward the stem, slice it in half. Scoop out the seeds and place, cut side up, onto a baking sheet or baking dish.

Since the size of squash varies from 2 to 3 pounds, the roasting time will also vary. Check for doneness beginning at 50 minutes. It's cooked when it's soft and easily pierced by a fork. When cooked, the squash will have liquid in the center. Let the squash rest to reabsorb that liquid.

To turn a squash into a complete meal, fill the center with stuffing, or stuff the center with filling. I'll leave that for you to decide. Either way, here's a master recipe you can vary to your heart's content to make scrumptious stuffed squash dinners all season long.

MIX AND MATCH STUFFING

- 1 to 2 cups vegetables
- 1/2 to 1 cup rice
- 1/2 to 1 cup cooked protein
- 1/4 cup optional add-ins

Roast squash according to directions above. While the squash is cooking, prepare your stuffing. Depending on the size of your squash, you'll want between 2 to 3 cups stuffing. In a skillet, saute 1 to 2 cups mixed diced vegetables, such as onion, garlic, celery, peppers, zucchini, mushrooms, spinach, practically anything. This is a perfect use for leftover veggies.

Add 1/2 to 1 cup cooked white or brown rice. Next, add 1/2 to 1 cup cooked protein to the mix. Examples are any kind of sausage, hamburger, chicken or soy-based vegetable crumbles. Yet another use for leftovers.

Lastly, add optional goodies to customize your dish. You could add cheese (Parmesan, mozzarella, feta, pepper jack), some crunch (nuts, sunflower seeds, pepitas), fresh herbs and dried fruit (raisins, cranberries, apricots). Stir it all together in the skillet. When the squash is cooked, mound the filling into the squash and return to the oven for 10 minutes.

Serve with flourish and devour your ultimate autumn comfort food.

RVIPF – “SIGNIFICANT IN THE SURVIVAL OF CIVIC SOCIETY” – COLIN O’NEAL

Tuesday, October 11 – Despite the difficulties encountered in carrying out the task of policing this community, Keynote Speaker Colin O’Neal says the Royal Virgin Islands Police Force plays a critical role in the survival of civic society in the BVI.

Mr. O’Neal spoke at a RVIPF Police Week Luncheon to mark 55 years of policing in the BVI.

“It is because of this very important role that you come under such criticism. Nobody criticises the insignificant or the unimportant. To a greater degree than you realise, the perceived legitimacy of the entire system of justice is affected by you – one solitary member of the Force,” he said.

While lauding the great work of the officers, evident in many successes in recent seizures and arrests in the last year, he gave two suggestions.

Firstly, he encouraged officers not to ignore the little things. “When public order offences which so discomfort the general population are not suitably addressed, the public loses confidence in the justice system as a whole and is less likely to engage with the police on the more serious matters. If we don’t effectively suppress (these violations), don’t be surprised if those practicing small violations step up their game and eventually get involved in more serious crime,” he said.

Secondly, Mr. O’Neal noted that apprehension of offenders is just the first step in bringing offenders to justice. “The officer must be able to give potent evidence when called to do so. It is important to know your case thoroughly and be able to relay it on the witness stand in clear terms so that the prosecution can depend on your evidence as part of the case.” He described a well-rounded police officer as one who can combine effectively front-line work with the ability to give potent evidence in the court of law. “You must be prepared and able to deliver what you were sent to court to deliver,” he noted. At the Police Week luncheon, special guest, former Inspector and first female officer of the

RVIPF, Ms. Eileen Baronville was presented with a large plaque with her photo and her history with the Force which will be installed at the Road Town Police Station. Commissioner of Police Mark Collins as well as His Excellency the Governor John Rankin, Hon. Premier Dr. Natalio Wheatley and Deputy Governor David Archer all addressed those gathered and pledged their support to the institution.

Head of the Police Week Committee Sergeant Sean McCall gave the closing remarks.

POPE AT AUDIENCE: 'ALLIANCE BETWEEN YOUTH AND ELDERLY WILL SAVE HUMANITY'

Pope Francis continues his catechesis on the meaning and value of old age at the weekly General Audience, and encourages young people to overcome the generational gap to embrace the 'credible witness' of the elderly.

By Devin Watkins (Vatican News)

At the Wednesday General Audience, Pope Francis reflected on the value of old age, focusing on Daniel's prophetic dream about the Ancient of Days (Dan 7:9-10).

The Pope said the vision—known as a theophany—highlights the connection between old age and youth.

Everything about the man in the vision is full of "vigour, strength, nobility, beauty, and charm". Yet, noted the Pope, the man is described with hair as white as snow, like an old man.

"The snow-white hair is an ancient symbol of a very long time, of time immemorial, of an eternal existence," he said.

Beauty of a white-bearded God

Pope Francis stressed that there is no need to strip our faith of symbols when trying to explain the Bible to others.

"The image of God, who watches over everything with snow-white hair, is not a silly symbol. It is a biblical image; it is noble, and even tender."

God, added the Pope, is both ancient and new, since He is eternity.

In the same way, humanity needs to rediscover the importance of allowing the old and the young to interact and share experience and enthusiasm.

"Old age," said the Holy Father, "must bear witness to children that they are a blessing" by embracing the "mystery of our destination in life".

Elderly bless life as it comes and goes
The Pope said the elderly have a unique way of bearing witness in such a way that is "credible to children."

"It is irresistible when an old person blesses life as it comes their way, laying aside any resentment for life as it goes away. The witness of the elderly unites the generations of life, the same with the dimensions of time: past, present and future."

At the same time, said Pope Francis, it is painful and even harmful to separate the ages of life and pit the old and the young against each other as if they were competing for the same resources.

Passing on wisdom of dying

Pope Francis concluded his catechesis by encouraging parents to allow their children to interact with the elderly, even as they near death's door, so as to pass on "the wisdom of dying".

"The alliance between the elderly and children will save the human family," he said.

"Death is certainly a difficult passage from life—but it is also one that concludes the time of uncertainty and throws away the clock. For the beautiful part of life, which has no more deadlines, begins precisely then."

Q. Did Cecily Strong leave “Saturday Night Live”? I know Kate McKinnon and a few others departed. Who are the replacements? — L.K.

A. Fan favorite Cecily Strong has taken a hiatus from “Saturday Night Live,” but will return later this season for what will be her 10th year on the show. She’s currently appearing in a one-woman stage show produced by her “SNL” boss Lorne Michaels titled “The Search for Signs of Intelligent Life in the Universe.” The new season of “SNL” premiered Oct. 1 with host Miles Teller (“Top Gun: Maverick”) and four new cast members: Marcello Hernandez, Molly Kearney, Michael Longfellow and Devon Walker. None of them is a household name yet, but give them time.

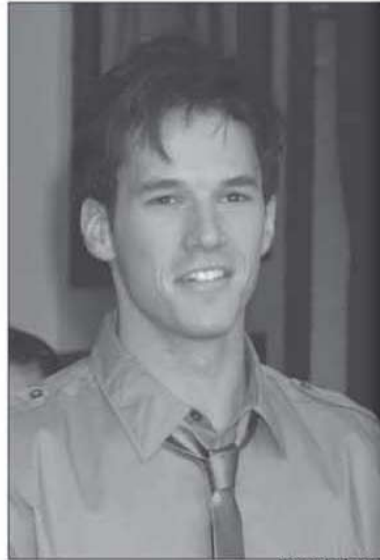

Season 48 will be a year of transition for “SNL,” as it bid farewell to eight performers last May. In addition to McKinnon, gone from “SNL” are Aristotle Athari, Aidy Bryant, Alex Moffat, Kyle Mooney, Chris Redd, Melissa Villaseñor and Pete Davidson. Fortunately, Kenan Thompson, who is the longest-running cast member with 20 years under his belt, is back, and so is “Weekend Update” host Colin Hanks.

Strong’s commitment in L.A. is scheduled to conclude on Oct. 23, so if I had to guess, I’d expect her back on NBC during November sweeps.

Q. I can’t believe they’re making a movie about Johnny Depp and Amber Heard. Is it going to be one of those cable TV movies, or will it be in theaters? — H.H.

A. It’s only been four months since the verdict was read in the defamation trial involving famous exes Johnny Depp (“Pirates of the Caribbean”) and Amber Heard (“Aquaman”), but it didn’t take long for Tubi, a streaming service, to make a movie about it. “Hot Take: The Depp/Heard Trial” stars Mark Hapka (“Days of Our Lives”) and Megan Davis (“Bones”) as the troubled couple during their two-month televised trial, which gripped America earlier this year.

In a recent interview with “Entertainment Weekly,” Hapka and Davis admitted that taking on these roles was risky for their careers, but that they were promised it would be a fair portrayal. Davis said that seeing the general public’s hatred of Heard during the trial broke her heart and made her even more eager to play the biographical role.

“Hot Take” is available to stream now for free on Tubi, a streaming service that doesn’t cost a monthly fee, but is supported by ads. You can learn more at TubiTV.com.

Q. Whatever happened to Megyn Kelly after she left Fox News? Is she still doing journalism, or did she go back to practicing law? — L.E.

A. Megyn Kelly left her primetime show “The Kelly File” on Fox News in 2017 for a lucrative deal with NBC as host of the third hour of the “Today” show on weekday mornings. However, the show was canceled after she made some controversial remarks on air. Since then, she’s hosted a daily podcast for Sirius XM. Before her broadcast career, Kelly practiced corporate law, but that was in the past.

Praluent Injections Significantly Decrease LDL Level

DEAR DR. ROACH: I am a 66-year-old male who was diagnosed about 15 years ago with mild coronary artery disease, with some blockages in my peripheral arteries. I was taking the maximum recommended dosage of pravastatin to maintain a low cholesterol, but I experienced complete ruptures of both Achilles tendons. These incidences occurred five years apart, but after the second rupture, my doctor discontinued the pravastatin. I then started Praluent injections twice a month to control my cholesterol, which has been incredibly effective — maybe even too effective — and is the purpose of my writing to you. With Praluent injections, my LDL level is about 26, and my HDL is 100. When my primary doctor’s assistant recently called to inform me of my bloodwork results, she said she has never seen anyone with such a low LDL level — and she sees a lot of bloodwork! My primary care doctor doesn’t like it that low, but two different cardiologists I have seen think that the lower it is, the better. What do you think? — J.W.

ANSWER: The first issue is whether statins increase the risk of an Achilles tendon rupture, and I can’t answer that with certainty, because there is some evidence it does. (Some studies have reported anywhere from an 80% relative risk increase to triple the risk, but the risk is still very, very low. Even if they triple the risk, the risk would be only three people per 10,000.) The studies that have shown there is risk suggest that the risk is only in the first year of taking statins, but other studies have shown no risk at all from statins.

The second issue is your very low LDL level, and the data for LDL levels is firmly on the side of the cardiologists you spoke with. The lower the LDL, the lower the risk of heart disease, and levels under 30 are not at all unusual in a person taking alirocumab (Praluent) or the other drug in that class (called PCSK9 inhibitors), evolocumab (Repatha). Your doctor’s assistant will likely be seeing more people with LDL levels like yours. Do remember that a healthy, mostly plant-based diet and regular exercise still have benefits in people with LDL levels as low as yours — and not just in heart disease, but in reducing cancer risk, too.

DEAR DR. ROACH: Can Dupuytren’s contracture be transmitted from one person to another via plasma donation? Is the theory a consensus in the medical field? — H.H.

ANSWER: Dupuytren’s contracture is a condition of fibrosis in the connective tissue of the hand, which leads to decreased hand flexibility and, ultimately (without treatment), to contractures, where fingers curl into the palm.

There is no known person-to-person transmissibility of Dupuytren’s contracture. It’s not an infectious disease. The risk factors include previous family history, being over 50, repetitive trauma, diabetes, smoking and alcohol. Some other related medical illnesses can also predispose a person to Dupuytren’s contracture. Potential treatments include surgery and enzyme injection.

The word “theory” means a well-thought-out explanation based on the scientific method that helps explain why certain observed phenomena occur. Your question about Dupuytren’s contracture being transmissible by plasma donation is a hypothesis for which I could find no support.

Dr. Roach regrets that he is unable to answer individual questions, but will incorporate them in the column whenever possible. Readers may email questions to ToYourGoodHealth@med.cornell.edu.

The World Does NOT Revolve Around You

Listen, you spoiled little cretins, the world does not revolve around you, I patiently explained.

You're kidding right? hooted my students derisively.

Pick up your instruments, start together on the downbeat and count carefully.

How many music teachers have had the first part of that conversation? Almost none, at least not out loud. The second installment is an every day plea for many.

Our youth-obsessed culture seems to make a liar out of me, but lest you think your work is in vain, let me present you with a few ideas.

One of the things adults commonly complain about in their later years looking back on school, aside from a lousy prom, was that they felt alone and like an outsider. The band and orchestra students that I have canvassed don't often feel that way. Isn't that interesting? I am lobbying to have my son do a graduate research project on this issue. I would love to see the results, wouldn't you?

Common sense, that harbinger of things everybody knows insists that if you learn to be part of a group that needs you in order to get something done, you will feel valuable and worthwhile. Anecdotal evidence supports this concept.

Our sports-mad world feeds us with stories of the scrawny child who becomes Mr. Olympics seven times, makes multimillions in movies and then governs California. What is often overlooked is that music serves many valuable parts of the maturation process that sports do not.

Let me elaborate briefly. Most people involved with music know the statistics. Music makes you brighter, helps you focus in all areas of study, gives you greater mastery over fractions than heretofore thought humanly possible, etc.

But here is a thought for all those guitar players strumming alone in their garrets.

When you have to listen and fit in, when there is the tyranny of a written part to play you are going to find yourself learning new musical concepts at light speed. Why?

For the same reason that learning say, mathematics, is easier with some formal guidelines. Reinventing multiplication or discovering every formula newly takes a few lifetimes of inquiry, just check your history texts. Solitary inquiry is necessary and good and I hope it has a place of honor in everyone's intellectual pantheon, but it cannot be the only method of realization.

One thing ensemble music instruction teaches you is that you must make nice with others in order to get the job done. So what? you say. It gets back to the heart of both of our issues.

One of the signs of maturity, which my adorable dumplings in the lower grades find difficult to exhibit, is ones place and involvement in an activity. In spite of what our youth worshipping culture and media would have you believe individuals are generally not the most important things on the program. In music you learn that you can have a part that is vital to the results, but so are the other parts. Together you all help to create a whole that is satisfying to everyone.

This is something that musicians learn and team players discover, but many other people miss completely. Unlike sports where there can be a competitive factor to be the best, music requires everyone be good to make the whole creative performance satisfying.

This is an even higher level of sophistication than sports because creating your part well and thoroughly gives you no personal glory but makes the whole experience better for all the other players and the audience. And all without someone else having to lose.

A good musician must practice alone but still be able to play with a group to create something larger than themselves. The product of this collaboration?

All of us have favored pieces of music associated with the times of our lives, and a majority of those pieces were created within a group, rather than by a solo artist.

Both musician and listener profit from this synergy. With recordings you can hear your favorites repeatedly extending the memories for a lifetime. So, although the world does not revolve around any one of us, the extended fruits of our conspiracies are definitely worth striving for. Go forth and make music for yourself and for all of us.

CHTA AND CTO PARTNER WITH JAMAICA FOR GLOBAL TOURISM RESILIENCE DAY

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, October 12, 2022 - The Caribbean Hotel & Tourism Association's (CHTA) President Nicola Madden-Greig, and the Caribbean Tourism Organization's (CTO) Chairman the Hon. Kenneth Bryan, Minister of Tourism for the Cayman Islands, have joined with Jamaica's Minister of Tourism, the Hon. Edmund Bartlett, to support the official designation of February 17 as Global Tourism Resilience Day.

The announcement comes following recent impact of hurricanes Fiona and Ian that caused damage to Puerto Rico and South Florida.

By joining with these two important industry leadership groups representing the Caribbean region, an invitation was also extended to the rest of the world to help make Global Tourism Resilience Day a historic and annual observation.

"As the Caribbean is well-known to be the most tourism-dependent region on earth, having both CHTA and CTO join the call to support Global Tourism Resilience Day is critical to our efforts to build the sector back stronger," said the Hon. Edmund Bartlett, Minister of Tourism, Jamaica. "Their participation in the 3-day summit to be held in Jamaica this coming February 2023 to celebrate the Day will also be a very welcome one."

"We must now truly harness the power of our knowledge, our human capital and resources to overcome our challenges," said CHTA President Nicola Madden-Grieg.

Most recently, Jamaica's Prime Minister The Most. Hon. Andrew Holness, made a call for the observation of Global Tourism Resilience Day during the September 22 session of the United Nations General Assembly.

In accordance with Prime Minister Holness's recommendation, Minister Bartlett has further proposed support for the establishment of a Global Resilience Fund. This fund would help destinations that are recognized as facing high vulnerability to disruptions, both natural and man made, but have insufficient financial capacity to prepare for and quickly recover from disruptions.

Both the proposed observance of a Global Tourism Resilience Day and the Fund would be designed to help build a more resilient and sustainable tourism industry worldwide.

As recent history has shown – whether it be through the pandemic or the aftermath of powerful and more frequent storms such as Hurricane Fiona and Hurricane Ian – the tourism industry is vulnerable to disruptions.

While the tourism industry is resilient and is already well on the road to recovery from these recent disruptions, obstacles will continue to arise. For this reason, destination preparedness and management are imperative.

"We are stronger when unified and I support Minister Bartlett's call to focus on tourism resilience in the Caribbean. To mitigate the worst case scenario, we must be proactive and deliberate. This will require support from political leaders in enacting the necessary legislation to adequately prepare for disasters of all types," said the Hon. Kenneth Bryan.

Tourism destinations and entities worldwide must work together to achieve greater resistance to disruptions, and it is the hope of CHTA, CTO and Jamaica that these steps will help to achieve that goal.

CARICOM STATEMENT ON HAITI

(CARICOM Secretariat, Turkeyen, Greater Georgetown, Guyana - Wednesday, 12 October 2022) - Heads of Government of the Caribbean Community (CARICOM) received a letter from the Prime Minister of Haiti, Dr. Ariel Henry, calling for solidarity and requesting assistance to alleviate the deepening humanitarian, security, political, and economic crises in Haiti.

The actions of criminal gangs have resulted in the complete cessation of fuel distribution in several parts of the country forcing the closure of hospitals and schools and the shutting down of water pumps prohibiting the provision of clean water. The water shortage also has exacerbated the resurgence of a cholera epidemic particularly in poor neighbourhoods.

Heads of Government condemn the callous and inhumane actions of the armed gangs responsible for the roadblocks limiting movement of the Haitian people and of goods, the destruction of life and livelihoods and the deprivation of the basic needs of the people.

Heads of Government call upon all stakeholders in Haiti to come together with urgency at this critical juncture in the country's history to bring an end to the protracted political stalemate in the interest of the people of the country and choose nation above self-interest.

Heads of Government reiterate their willingness to facilitate meaningful dialogue and consensus building among Haitian stakeholders to support efforts at resolving the political stalemate. The proposed assistance includes institution building, implementation of free and fair elections when the required enabling conditions are met, and the establishment of a framework for long-term social and economic development.

However, they recognise that these initiatives could not be effectively realised until the security situation is addressed. In that regard Heads of Government take note of the appeal by Prime Minister Henry for the urgent assistance of Haiti's international partners for short term assistance to address the security and humanitarian crises.

G7 Vows Renewed Support for Ukraine; US Pledges Air Defense Systems

WASHINGTON — Leaders of the Group of Seven wealthiest nations, meeting Tuesday in a crisis video conference with Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy, pledged Tuesday they “will stand firmly with Ukraine for as long as it takes” after Russia continued its barrage of missile attacks on Ukrainian cities.

The G-7 leaders said in a statement after the virtual meeting that they had reassured Zelenskyy they are “undeterred and steadfast in our commitment to providing the support Ukraine needs to uphold its sovereignty and territorial integrity.” They said Moscow’s “indiscriminate attacks on innocent civilian populations constitute a war crime.”

“We will hold President [Vladimir] Putin and those responsible to account,” the G-7 leaders said. The G-7 comprises U.S., Germany, Britain, France, Italy, Canada and Japan.

Amid Putin’s ongoing threats to use nuclear weapons, the G-7 reiterated it would direct “severe consequences” should Moscow use weapons of mass destruction but did not imply direct military involvement in Ukraine.

U.S. officials have said they have not seen indications that Putin has decided to use nuclear weapons and underscored there is no change in U.S. nuclear posture.

John Kirby, the National Security Council coordinator for strategic communications, told VOA in a briefing to reporters Tuesday that the U.S. is not considering deploying tactical nuclear weapons — smaller and less destructive than strategic nuclear weapons — in Ukraine.

interest from our side and from our allies and partners to see this war escalate into the use of the weapons of mass destruction at all,” he said.

Russia is estimated to have 2,000 of these tactical nuclear weapons, including some so small and portable that they are referred to as “suitcase bombs.”

“It’s unclear whether we have the ability to track how Russia is moving or not moving their tactical nuclear weapons,” Luke Coffey, a senior fellow at Hudson Institute, told VOA. “We have to plan for all contingencies.”

White House press secretary Karine Jean-Pierre declined to comment on reports that President Andrzej Duda of Poland has offered to participate in a nuclear-sharing agreement in which his country would host nuclear arsenals.

Air defense systems

Earlier this week, President Joe Biden told Zelenskyy the U.S. would provide Ukraine with advanced air defense systems, according to the White House. U.S. Defense Secretary Lloyd Austin is set to discuss details at the Ukraine Defense Contact Group meeting in Brussels on Wednesday, with chiefs of defense from nearly 50 nations — the sixth meeting of the group since it formed in April.

The air defense systems under consideration would include those that can counter so-called loitering munitions, which wait around an area and attack once a target is located. These include drones that Russia recently obtained from Iran, said Becca Wasser, senior fellow in the defense program at the Center for New American Security.

“To ensure that, frankly, Ukraine can have better control of its airspace, not only for some of its military operations but to assure that it won’t actually have some of these attacks on civilians and on some critical infrastructure,” Wasser told VOA.

Firefighters work at the site of a car retailer office building, destroyed during a Russian missile attack in Zaporizhzhia, Ukraine Oct. 11, 2022. (Handout photo/Press service of the State Emergency Service of Ukraine)

These systems are necessary to create a sense of normalcy within the country, now in its eighth month of Russian attacks, Wasser added.

“To make it so that folks are willing to return to places like Kyiv and ensure that Ukraine can actually restart its economy,” she said.

The White House would not elaborate on the kinds of systems it is considering for Kyiv, including whether they would deploy the long-range Patriot air defense system that can counter tactical ballistic missiles, cruise missiles and advanced aircraft.

“We have provided air defense systems to Ukraine,” Kirby said during his briefing. “We plan to continue to provide air defense systems to Ukraine. And when there’s something to announce in that regard, we’ll do that.”

Monday’s strikes, which included 84 cruise missiles and 24 drones, killed at least 19 people. Moscow said they were in response to an attack Saturday on a bridge that links Russia to Crimea, the Ukrainian peninsula illegally seized by Moscow in 2014, which has been a major supply route for Moscow’s operations in southern Ukraine. Ukraine has hinted its security agents carried out the truck bomb attack on the bridge but has not publicly claimed responsibility.

Russian Ambassador to the United States Anatoly Antonov told reporters that more Western military aid for Ukraine risked further escalation and a possible clash between Russia and NATO.

Tougher sanctions

The G-7 said it is committed to helping Ukraine meet its “winter preparedness needs” and will continue to provide financial, humanitarian, military, diplomatic and legal support to Kyiv.

Zelenskyy urged the Western allies to impose even tougher sanctions on Russia’s energy sector to stop the flow of money from its oil and gas exports, which Moscow uses to help fund the war. It would be a symmetrical response to Russia’s attacks on the “energy sector and energy stability of our countries,” he said.

G-7 leaders also condemned the involvement of Belarusian President Aleksandr Lukashenko after more than two dozen missiles were fired at Ukrainian targets from the country, calling it “the most recent example of the Belarusian regime’s complicity with Russia.”

The G-7 focus on Belarus is “a good first step,” since for too long, Lukashenko has received a pass on the Russian invasion, according to the Hudson Institute’s Coffey.

On Monday, Lukashenko announced Russian troops would return to Belarus in large numbers, a replay of the military buildup there prior to Moscow’s invasion of Ukraine in February.

VOLLEYBALL

In less than half a term, three key Volleyball executives resign

By Dean "The Sportsman" Greenaway

While a female Volleyball team was preparing to return to the Eastern Caribbean Volleyball Association Championships for the first time since 2014 this week, Stephen Payne announced on Thursday's Sports Beat Magazine on CBN 90.9 FM, that he and two other executive committee members have tendered their resignation from the post to which they were elected in February 2021, through 2025—some 19 months ago.

Payne, who took the helm as President, Vice President Canis Marquis and Treasurer Annabelle Skelton-Malone, are no longer executives of the association. When asked what is happening in Volleyball, after discussing the Recreation Trust's plans, Payne, operations manager with the body responded:

"I probably have to share this in the public right now, but I tendered my resignation as President and it became effective October 1st," Payne revealed. "However, I'm still pretty much involved with volleyball, just not sitting at the helm."

Payne said the other members are pretty much in tack, minus himself and Vice President Canis Marquis and later stated that Treasurer Annabelle Skelton-Malone, had also resigned. He said an Annual General Meeting is to be called to have someone sit in those positions. "Right now, the go to person is general secretary, Kisheba Sprauve-Callwood. Currently, I'm the head national coach and we'll be heading off to a tournament in St. Martin, for the ECVA Sr. Female Volleyball Tournament, from Oct 12-17."

Payne also apologized for a 'lack of information' in the public domain regarding the team, 'pretty much' because of an 'inactive public relations officer.' He added that volleyball is still being played, but in relation to direction and who sits at the helm, there's no one right now in terms of an elected president and vice president. Besides Sprauve-Callwood, Rockel Woods, Assistant Secretary, Maria Drigo, Assistant Treasurer, Players Rep, Caldon "Reno" Morton, Kiah Walters, Public Relations Officer and Sabinah Clement, ex Officio member remain as active executive members.

Payne stated that his resignation doesn't stop him from being involved in the direction the sport goes. "My resignation was fueled by some dynamics outside of volleyball itself and I thought it best that I distance myself from the leadership of the executive, not necessarily distancing myself from volleyball," he explained. "I've been involved in volleyball from the time I was 11 years old, so I just could not continue leading an association at this time. I might vie some other time in the future, but I think it was critical that I step away from the volleyball association for some personal reasons."

He said he will still be around volleyball in whichever capacity he feels like doing and said one of his desires now is to push youth volleyball with the help of Jackie Weeks, to ensure they will have candidates that will further allow the BVI Volleyball Association to participate in not only senior competitions, but Under 19s, beach volleyball. There's also senior men and women, junior men and women and World Championships qualifiers.

"There are a number of things we haven't been looking at because of the failure to develop youth programs," Payne noted. "So we have a cohort of young people now buying on to volleyball and I think that's where my focus will be, once I return from St. Martin."

Meanwhile, the BVI Women's team—ranked lowest in the region because of inactivity since 2014—faced St. Lucia, Antigua and

Victor, Lindsay continues to set Mourant College Classic Series pace

By Dean "The Sportsman" Greenaway

Rowan "Rosie" Victor and Katrina "Kat" Lindsay won their second Mourant College Classic Series races Saturday on Tortola, in the event that attracted 177 participants in two divisions.

Victor overhauled Lynch in the last 350 meters to stop the clock in 11 minutes 50.16 seconds—the only runner breaking 12 minutes on the 2 Miles course. Lynch followed in 12:02.53.

"Well, it was definitely harder than the first one. Lynch pushed me a bit more this time, he extended the lead till right before the home stretch, I saw him pulled up again, I was like ok, it's time to push buy and I won the race," Victor said, noting that he didn't push the pace earlier. "How I felt this time, it was more difficult. So as much time as I tried to push, I couldn't. I just had to wait it out."

When told he has a target on his back, Victor said it's not his concern.

"All I'm running for is for time," he said. "That's what I'm looking for."

Lynch who ran 11:51.98 in the opener, said the race felt faster.

"I was hoping to come out with the victory today, but Rosie beat me," he said after pushing the pace for the better part of the race. "I started to vomit then he passed me."

Lindsay, seventh overall in 12:39.36, said she's trying to push herself back to see where she can get her speed and noted that her Coach Limiel Hodge, was going to be shaking his head after her poor start.

"I could not have had a worse start today so next time, I may run a bit faster and if I get a better start, I'll be on a time that I'm happy with," she said. "My training has been consistent which is what I need, just getting the runs in more than anything. Not trying to put in any speed or anything because for me, that's going to lead to injury. I've got the longer Half Marathon in mind so keeping it consistent and getting the miles in and it seems to be working for me."

Meanwhile, Zebalon McLean—who ran in the inaugural race on Oct 19, 1996, has only missed eight races over the 27 years of the event. He said while he's having a slower finish, he's still enjoying it and is always happy to see more participants.

"It's the one event where you have every age group, every persuasion, every level of fitness and running two miles isn't going to kill you. You don't have to be in shape," he noted. "When you come and do it, if you're out of shape it motivates you to get into better shape. I'm happy to see the level of participation we continue to have year after year."

At 80, Audley Maduro was the race's oldest participant and was joined by his wife Delma. He said when he was in school, he learned in physics, that an object in motion stays in motion. As a result, he now walks after running and swimming a lot.

2 Miles start at the top, runners going around the roundabout and the One Mile starters in Saturday's Mourant College Classic Series race

"I did make the mistake and said I've been doing this so long now I could take it easy," he said. "I could tell you. Piece of back pain took me and I said you know what, as long as I'm able I'm going to walk. I know it works for me (and) I know it will work for anyone."

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your ideas earn the respect of your colleagues. But, you'll have to present some hard facts and figures if you hope to persuade those who make the big decisions to support you.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Keep those bright Bull's eyes focused on the project at hand. Avoid distractions. There'll be lots of time for fun and games later. Expect to get welcome news this weekend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You soon might have to decide about moving a relationship from its current status to another level. Don't let anyone influence your decision. It must be yours and yours alone.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You finally can get off that emotional roller coaster and get back to focusing on your goals without interruptions through the rest of the week. A nice change is due by the weekend.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Trying to make an impression on some people runs into a bit of a snag at first, but it all works out. An old and almost forgotten personal matter once again needs attention.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A rise in your energy level helps you finish an especially demanding task. Take some time now to spend with family and friends before starting a new project.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) This is a good time to re-establish contact with trusted former associates who might be able to offer good advice regarding that career change you've been contemplating.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your resourcefulness combined with a calm, cool approach help you work your way out of a knotty situation, and avoid a potentially serious misunderstanding.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A calm, quiet period allows you to recharge your energies. But, you'll soon be ready to saddle up and gallop off in pursuit of your goals.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Family matters need your attention. Check things out carefully. There still might be unresolved tensions that could hinder your efforts to repair damaged relationships.

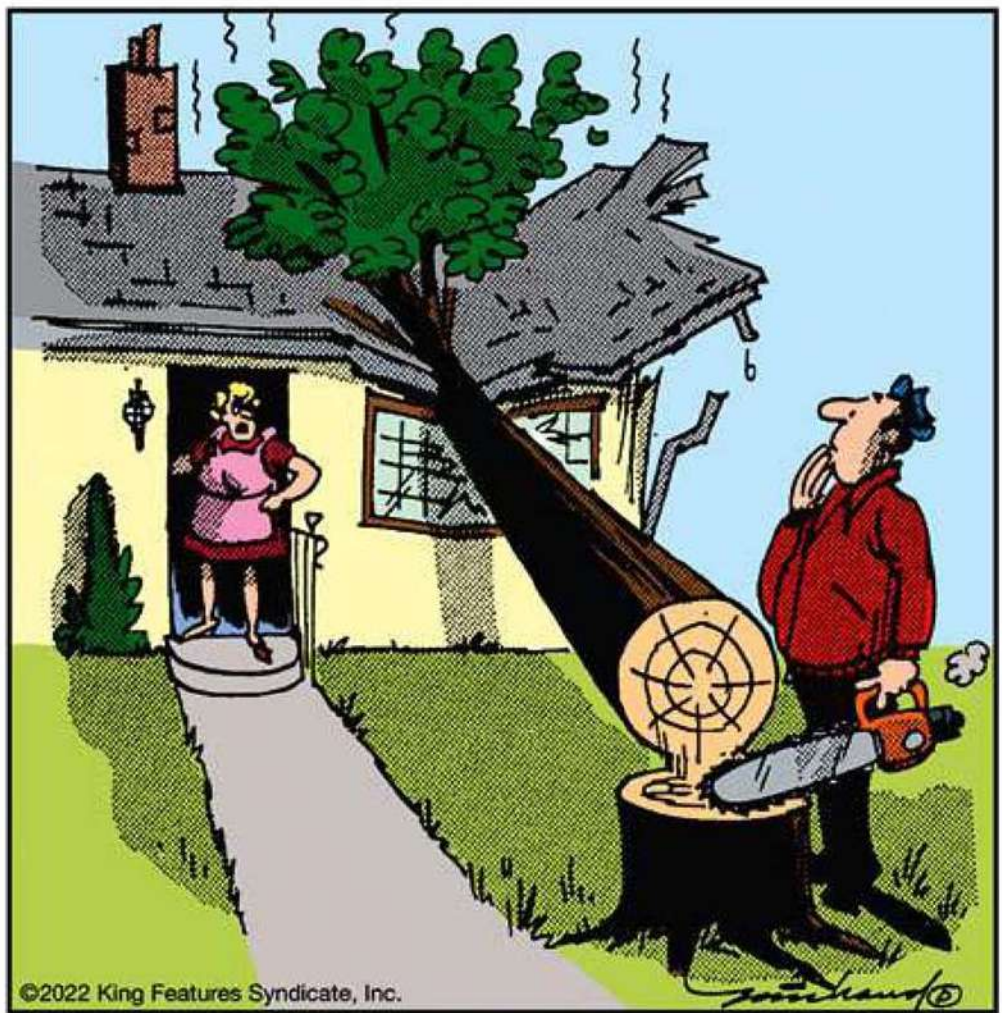

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) It's a good time to take a stand and show as much passion on your own behalf as you do when arguing for the rights of others. You might be happily surprised by the reaction.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You bring sense and sensitivity to a confusing situation. Things soon settle down, leaving you free to enjoy a weekend of fun and relaxation with friends and family.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a talent for being able to perceive possibilities where others only see problems.

MAKE HEADS OR TAILS OF COIN SWITCH?

LIKE to switch things around? Try your hand at this old poser. P.S.: It has a catch to it, natch.

Arrange a group of 12 similar-size coins, as at left, alternating heads and tails.

Now then, see if you can rearrange the scheme of things so that each vertical row consists of all heads or all tails simply by touching and manipulating just one coin.

That is to say, rearrange the setup, for instance, so that the first and third rows are all heads, and the second and fourth row tails.

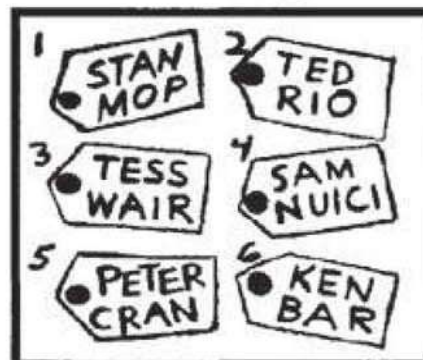

And all this by touching and manipulating one coin.

How is it done?

NICE CATCH! Which path does the squirrel take to catch the falling acorn? Take a guess, then trace through line or lines.

SHAPE UP! There's a box turtle, a square meal, an angleworm, a conehead, arc welding, an archenemy, a round robin. Can you think of some more definitively shaped terms?

TAG LINES! What's in a name? Or, more specifically, what's in the six names that appear on tags in the diagram below? Well, if you are able to anagram the six names correctly, you can identify each individual's occupation. That is to say, letters can be rearranged to form names of jobs.

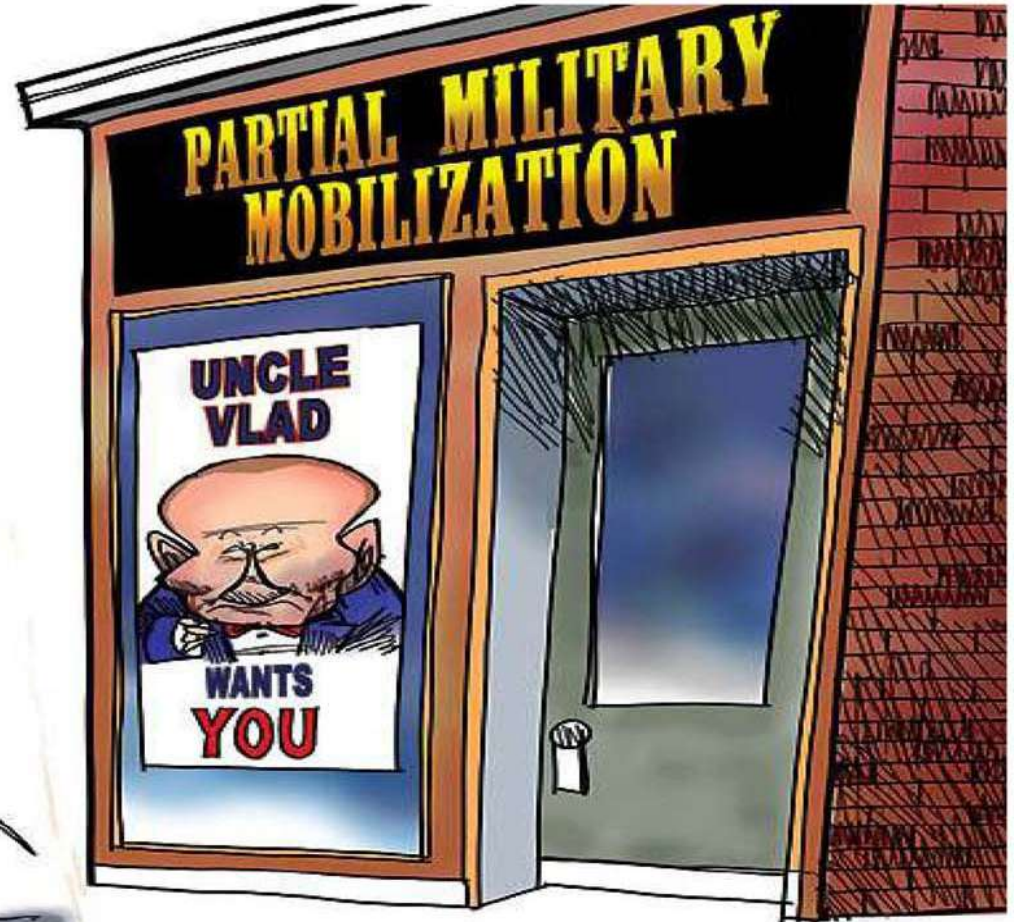

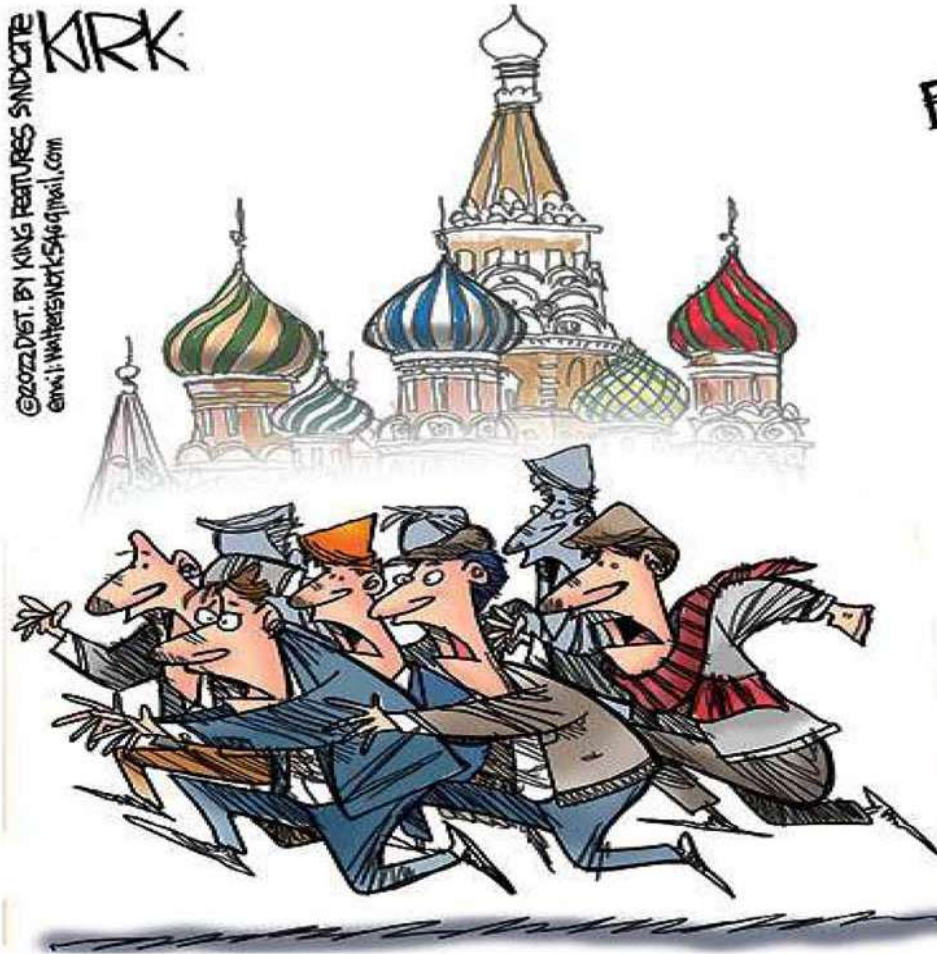

Hints: 1. Delivers mail. 2. Handles copy. 3. Serves food. 4. Plays in a band. 5. Uses a hammer. 6. Lends money.

What are the jobs?

1. Postman. 2. Editor. 3. Waitress. 4. Musician. 5. Carpenter. 6. Banker.

The Garden Bug

Planting in autumn

Gardeners often think that fall is too close to bitter winter weather to plant a young tree, but cooler temps and autumn rain help to establish roots before they must contend with extreme heat or drought of the following summer. New roots establish more quickly in a hole that is 1) roughly twice the diameter of the tree's root ball, and 2) a depth that allows the tree to stand at the same level as the nearby soil, so that water does not pool around the trunk. - Brenda Weaver

THE OAS IS BROKE AND BROKEN

By Sir Ronald Sanders

(In replacement of his weekly commentary, Sir Ronald Sanders has provided the following statement made at the OAS General Assembly in Peru on 6 October)

As we meet at this 52nd Regular Session of the General Assembly of the Organisation of American States, the OAS is financially broke.

We are trying to run an Organization that costs $118 million on an unrealistic Budget of $81 million. The result is that the Secretariat of the Organization is unable to carry out a mountain of mandates from a hill of meagre financial resources.

Sadly, because of this, the staff of the Organization live in uncertainty.

Many are seeking better security elsewhere, and there is an exodus of talent, as skilled people flee to seek refuge in destinations with better prospects.

It is little wonder that the peoples of our countries do not see the benefits of the OAS and, therefore, place little or no value in it.

Member states with the financial capacity to pay, withhold their due contributions, and others seek incentives to pay on time what they agreed to pay, and have an obligation to meet.

The Organization is still booking as receivable income, contributions from countries that have severed their ties from it, in fictional transactions that claim these monies, running into tens of millions of dollars, are somehow payable.

If the OAS was a public company, its auditors would have declared it bankrupt.

The Organization is also structurally broken

The OAS is hardly known by the peoples of our states. And, collectively, we do not seem to know if we are an organisation of 35 states or of 34.

The OAS has a Charter and rules of procedure that were produced in the days before cellular phones and the internet, before the world became a neighbourhood, and before interconnectivity between nations occurs in the fraction of a section.

Yet its ancient Charter and rules of procedure have remained in the guide of an Organization, operating in the modern world with unprecedented challenges.

The result is that the Organization moves at the slow crawl of a turtle when it should be moving at the pace of Jamaica's Usain Bolt, responsive to needs of people at every level.

That is why a General Assembly can impose a violation of the Charter by 19 votes including a disputed representative but cannot change it by 19 votes of fully qualified and accredited representatives as happened this morning,

The Organization has an obligation to respond to the needs of its peoples because its member governments have promised to do so.

That is the compact between governments and people which this Organization was established to fulfil.

But there is a gap between what governments promised and what is being delivered.

And, let it be clear that the failure to bridge that gap is not the fault of the Secretariat and its largely capable staff.

It is the fault of Governments that do not provide the resources; it is the fault of an antiquated Charter; and it the fault of anachronistic rules which urgently need reform.

Therefore, Governments must resolve to address these problems, and commit to provide the resources to give the OAS the vibrance, relevance and importance that it should have.

Not for the first time, Antigua and Barbuda urges the establishment of a group of Eminent persons from across our hemisphere to produce a report and recommendations on what must happen to recreate the OAS to serve the needs of our Hemisphere, and the needs of our Hemisphere in the World.

Mr Chairman, there are critical issues that confront all our nations collectively.

They are issues that none of us can fully satisfy individually, but we can all meet collectively.

Those issues include:

The impact of Climate Change from which none of our nations can escape.

The maintenance and preservation of the international legal order which is the basis for peace and prosperity across the world.

In this regard, we all have an obligation to stand up against any nation that violates the global legal order, as Russia has done in Ukraine, creating world economic turmoil and instability that looks set to worsen.

That is why Antigua and Barbuda contributed actively to the resolutions and declarations that sought to tell President Putin that this war must end, and end now.

The innocent and smallest of our nations have been burdened the most, trapped in an international financial system that ignores our needs,

Health issues also confront us all. COVID-19 is not the last pandemic the world will endure.

This hemisphere needs to be ready for the next one.

And ready - not with nationalistic protectionism but in multi-nation collaboration.

There should never again be vaccine hoarding by the rich and deprivation for the poor,

The mantra of none is safe, until all are safe will continue to be true in the future as it was as we all trembled in fear at COVID-19.

Addressing economic inequalities is also a common challenge for which there can only be a common solution.

Development and economic advancement must be a goal for all in our hemisphere, for which all in our hemisphere should work diligently in our collective interest.

Human rights and human freedom must also remain a fundamental objective of this OAS, but we must devise early warning mechanisms, with implementation machinery, to address violations before they become so persistent and pervasive, that there are empty chairs and lowered flags at our meetings.

In this regard, my delegation makes it clear that Haiti cannot be left by itself to deal with rampaging, armed gangs who kidnap, terrorize and enrich themselves, defying all laws and tearing down institutions.

The gangs in Haiti must be brought under control without any further delay.

The countries, in this Assembly, with the resources to help should do so, and the Haitian authorities must provide them with the guarantees, including stomping our corruption, that are necessary to help.

The alternative is the creation of a criminal state in our midst, and a base for criminal activity in our neighbourhood.

The Haitian people do not want this.

They are the victims.

This OAS has an obligation to help and help now.

Mr Chairman, the OAS can be a force for good, an instrument of peace and prosperity and an influence for democracy and development, but only if we reform it, respect it and resource it.
